

The Kids' Communication Center

Providing pediatric speech-language therapy in the DC Metropolitan area

INTENSIVE SESSIONS

The Kids' Communication Center is currently registering for intensive speech-language therapy sessions, which will take place over spring break and during the summer. Intensives can be conducted in person, virtually via teletherapy, or a combination of both based on the family's schedule.

What is intensive therapy?

Intensive therapy refers to a therapeutic model where sessions are delivered at an increased frequency and/or duration, often over a shorter period of time. When children have breaks from school, such as over spring break or summer, the extra time can provide a fantastic opportunity for children to receive additional, focused support.

Intensive therapy can result in faster, more significant progress when compared with traditional once or twice weekly sessions that are spread out over a period of months. It can allow children to advance more quickly between skill levels. It can also help to solidify skills that are already emerging. Intensive sessions at The Kids' Communication Center are still play-based and child directed, as we know that children learn best when they are having fun!

Group Intensives

We will be conducting two school-readiness intensive groups during the week of August 25th. These groups are intended for rising preschoolers, rising kindergarteners, and rising first graders.

Who can benefit?

Intensive treatment sessions are likely to benefit children who are working on any of the following speech-language skill areas:

- Articulation
- Receptive Language
- Expressive Language
- Pragmatic (Social) Language
- Phonological Awareness
- Early Reading & Spelling
